LETTER OF TRANSMITTAL

To His Excellency, George W. Clarke, Governor of Iowa:

Sir—In accordance with the provisions of section 2509-a of the Supplement to the Code, 1907, I have the honor to herewith transmit to Your Excellency my report of the work of inspecting petroleum products by the oil inspectors of the state, and which gives in detail the receipts and expenditures connected with these inspections, during the biennial period commencing July 1, 1912, and ending June 30, 1914.

As will be observed by referring to the three reports of oil inspections made by my immediate predecessor, there was a steady increase in net receipts to the state during each of the biennial periods covered by such reports and this increase in net receipts I am pleased to state has continued throughout the last biennial period.

In no state in the union, perhaps, has the use of the products of petroleum been so great, according to population, as it has been in Iowa during the past ten years. The fees, therefore, derived from the inspection of these products have now become an important factor in the revenues of the state. I feel safe in saying that there is no other state in which the work of the inspection of petroleum products is done so thoroughly as in Iowa, whether the plan adopted be the state or the county system.

The persons assigned to this branch of the public service in our state have been, almost without exception, both competent and faithful in the discharge of their duties and the result of their labors shows the utmost care in the safeguarding of human lives and the protection of property. In no section of the country have accidents or fatalities been fewer and damages to property less in the use by the general public of the different forms of petroleum than in this state.

In this connection I cannot pass without first commending the very efficient service rendered to the state by the Hon. Henry T. Saberson, chief clerk in the Department of State, and who has had for several years past the sole supervision of the checking and examination of the reports of the oil inspectors and has also carried on the heavy correspondence relating to the work. To this gentleman belongs almost entire credit for the adoption of the rules and regulations governing for so many years the mutual relations of this Department and the different inspectors located in the various parts of the state and which have contributed so much to the success of the inspection service.

By way of recapitulating and presenting to the mind more quickly some of the salient features contained in the tables of this report, I wish to state that during the past two years $1,057,735 barrels of oil have been inspected, being an increase of 197,343 barrels over the previous biennial period, and 1,457,984 barrels of gasoline inspected or passed. For this the state received, after deduction has been made for oil shipped out of the state and for naphtha used for other than illuminating purposes the sum of $242,735.83. The cost of inspection service during this biennial period was $54,682.63, leaving to the state a balance as net receipts of $188,053.20. Thus will be seen the net receipts over the biennial period ending June 30, 1912, are $69,209.72 while the cost of inspection increased only $2,058.73.

In estimating the cost of inspection, however, both now and in the past, no account has been taken of the cost of office supplies, such as blanks, postage, etc., and of time spent in checking reports, items of expense not easily determined but which will not materially affect the general result.

Of the amount received for inspection during the first year of the biennial period embraced in this report 75.01 per centum was profit to the state, and 24.99 per centum was the cost of inspection; and during the second year of this period 78.69 per centum was profit to the state, and 21.31 per centum was the cost of inspection.

For the total of the biennial period the net profit to the state was 77.85 per centum of the amount collected for inspection, and 22.15 per centum the cost of inspection. This is a gain in net profits of 8.55 per centum over the previous biennial period and is not surpassed, I believe, by any former biennial period save one and then only by less than 1 per centum.

The foregoing proves conclusively that the oil inspectors of the state have been performing their duties in a perfectly satisfactory manner and that the service is constantly improving both from the standpoint of efficiency and economy.

Before closing this communication I wish to call your attention to the controversy that has lately arisen with reference to the enforcement of that part of the law requiring the payment of fees for the inspection of gasoline. Many of the concerns, particularly some of the large dealers handling the commodity, have for some time insisted this provision of the statute was unconstitutional and refused to pay such fees. When the officers urged payment injunction proceedings were threatened to enjoin their action to collect. The objectors claimed with great earnestness that the statute in effect sought to compel payment for services when no services were in fact rendered as gasoline was seldom if ever really inspected. There seems to be merit in their contention. Under the police power inherent in the state and under which this and similar statutes derive their authority, it appears the state cannot exact fees of this character in excess of the expenses incident to inspection. In a recent case in Maryland, Foot & Company vs. Maryland, 232 U. S. 494, the Supreme Court of the United States held:

"Effect must be given by the courts to the provisions of the constitution; and where it does appear that the amount of inspection fees are disproportionate to the inspection service rendered or include something beyond inspection, the tax must be declared void as obstructing the freedom of interstate commerce."

In view of the foregoing decision the question of oil inspection in Iowa has become a serious one in so far as it relates to the collection of fees for inspection of gasoline in cases where there is only slight, and in most instances, no inspection at all. The problem then is one involving the constitutional basis for the law and is not a question as to what is the letter or even the spirit of the statute. There has been no objection made by any one to the collection of the ten cent fee for each barrel of oil inspected, and also the same fee for gasoline actually inspected.

On account of the situation presented by the ruling of the supreme court above quoted a conference was held in the month of June, 1914, by Your Excellency, the attorney general, the chief oil inspector and myself to consider what steps, if any, could be taken to make the enforcement of the law conform to such decision. The conclusion reached at the conference was that no inspection fee should be charged by the state for inspecting gasoline when there was in fact no inspection; that whenever special circumstances or special complaints required an inspection of gasoline some form of inspection should be made and then a fee should be charged, and that the custom of charging a fee where inspection was not made should be discontinued. Accordingly, the oil inspectors were so instructed and since then no effort has been made to enforce this part of the statute in the absence of any inspection made.

Further legislation on the subject is needed. It should provide for the changed conditions resulting from the decision of the supreme court in the premises. Also to better safeguard the people and their property in view of the growing hazard resulting from the enormous increase in the use of petroleum products. No general revision of the oil inspection laws of the state has been made since 1904. Several changes for the public good might be suggested but space forbids. I would respectfully urge that the General Assembly be requested to give early consideration to the matter as it is one so closely related to the general welfare of the people.

All of which is respectfully submitted by

W. S. ALLEN,
Secretary of State.
